

Legacy of Caring:

Home for Elderly Sisters

Medical Care for God's Poor

Help Us Build for Those in Need

A Home for Elderly Sisters

Sisters live their entire adult lives in service to God – teaching children, working in soup kitchens, comforting the sick. Now, many sisters in our order, and others, are becoming elderly and frail. They need a retirement home.

And so we are doing something about this. Our order, the Oblates to the Blessed Trinity, have a plan to build such a facility right on our campus in Hopewell Junction, NY. But we need help. We need time, talent and treasure from generous people like you.

A Larger Clinic for the Poor

Our sisters opened a clinic in El Salvador back in 2001. For the rural population in this poor country, it is the only medical treatment they receive. Several times a year, doctors visit and provide more services, but they are limited by travel time and lack of facilities.

We are doing something about this too. We have a plan to expand the clinic and accommodate more doctors so that hundreds of people who are now turned away will get treatment. With your help, we will make this a reality also.
